The session began with engagement in the park, where we connected with a group of young people in an informal and approachable way. During these conversations, we promoted the upcoming summer activities and promoted Chips and Chill in the village. We also explained our role during the summer and passed on information regarding the C Card program.

While in the park, we also encouraged the group to help clear a small amount of litter. They responded positively, joining in without hesitation. Although a brief activity, it showed their willingness to contribute and take responsibility for their surroundings.

We then moved on to the local shop and checked in with the workers regarding any anti-social behaviour the general feel was that it had been quiet, but they are expecting it to increase over the next few weeks.

Following our time in the park, we moved on to the beach, which was very busy with families enjoying the good weather. We observed a number of young people relaxing on the sand or going into the sea. While engagement was less direct in this setting, the atmosphere was calm and positive, with everyone appearing relaxed and comfortable in their surroundings. This offered an opportunity to be present and visible, ensuring young people knew we were available should they wish to engage.

Our final stop was the new updated Waterfront pub and café; we introduced ourselves and had a extensive conversation with the manger.
